What is a cookie?

A cookie is a tiny data file stored on your computer, tablet, or smartphone. It's important to note that this file cannot contain malicious programs or viruses.

What cookies do we use at Wentland Switzer-Land?

At our Wentland Switzer-Land site, we have chosen to only use essential cookies, also known as strictly necessary cookies.

Essential cookies are vital to ensure the proper functioning of our website by enabling basic functions such as page navigation and access to secure areas. Without these cookies, the site cannot operate correctly.

Your user experience would be significantly impacted without these necessary cookies. For instance, you would need to re-login to your account every time a new web page loads and answer the same questions repeatedly. They are also crucial for the efficiency and security of our website.

How long are cookies stored on your computer?

The majority of cookies we use are session cookies, meaning they are automatically deleted as soon as you log out or close your browser. However, some cookies remain on your device after the current session until you manually delete them.

How to delete cookies?

You can always delete or completely block all cookies by adjusting the settings in your browser on your computer, tablet, or smartphone. The location of these settings varies depending on the browser you are using. By deleting cookies, you are changing your consent.

Please note, however, that we use strictly necessary cookies for the proper functioning of the site. If you block these cookies, you may not be able to use certain functions and services on the website.

Typically, to delete cookies, you need to go to your browser settings and then to privacy settings. To learn more, you can click on the relevant link for your browser.
